

High Hopes, Slow Results — Restaurant Recovery in Canada

In Canada, foodservice orders and spending in 2021 were up from 2020, but they remained below pre-pandemic levels. The Canadian foodservice industry entered the year hopeful to get back on track. But the late-year return of pandemic restrictions suppressed consumer enthusiasm, flattening the recovery curve in Q4.

Take a look at our latest insights ...

The shift to off-premises foodservice orders, like carry-out, drive-thru, and delivery, was substantial in 2021. Our CREST® service for Canadian foodservice industry leaders can help you understand the foodservice landscape — how it's changed and what changes are here to stay — so you can grow your business this year.

Source: The NPD Group/CREST®, Canada, YE December 2021

Want more insights like this?
Contact erica.cadwell@npd.com.

